PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

By Kim McKeon

For me genealogy isn't just a hobby but an adventure into the past, uncovering hidden treasures and surprising connections. It amazes me how one conversation or discovery can completely transform one's understanding of family history. The discovery of how my Irish great grandfather was the sole surviving child out of eleven or that a coffin prepared for my Norwegian great grandmother who was born on the Atlantic Ocean was luckily never used, has led to an appreciation of the fragility of life and the complexity of family heritage. Every piece of information, no matter how small, contributes to a larger tapestry of family history.

SVGS monthly programs are held on the first Thursday, September through May. Members will have the opportunity to further explore their family heritage, and hopefully, to make new discoveries. In September, we had the opportunity to explore Mt. Pleasant, a local cemetery where many of Sioux Falls' earliest pioneers are buried. In October, a noted museum director will show us how to conduct good oral histories.

Perhaps an area of genealogy that has only recently become more accessible to genealogists is genetic genealogy. Genetic genealogy is a field of genealogy and family history research that combines genealogical DNA tests and additional genealogy methods to discover how individuals are related. For many genealogists interpreting DNA tests results can be a challenge. To assist in understanding genetic genealogy, SVGS and the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) are jointly hosting a DNA Genealogy conference June 6th and 7th that will address these challenges and hopefully provide some answers for attendees about their DNA test results. I am hoping many of you will be able to attend this conference

Finally, for those of you frustrated in your genealogical research, remember to reach out to SVGS for assistance, ask questions, and engage with the SVGS community.

She covers famous trails such as the Oregon/California Trails, Mormon Trail, Santa Fe Trail, and some lesser-known routes such as the Bozeman, Central Overland Trail, and the Butterfield Overland Trail. CITY DIRECTORIES IN THE SIOUX VALLEY GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY LIBRARY

Submitted by Lynette Trainer, Edited by L Feenstra

Looking for an ancestor? Check the City Directories. Directories were created for salespeople, merchants, as well as those interested in contacting residents of an area. The names and addresses of residents are arranged alphabetically and often list the adult residents of a city or given area.

The most helpful directories for genealogical research are city and county directories of local residents and businesses. These are generally published annually and may include an individual's address, occupation, spouse's name, and other helpful facts. An individual's address can be extremely helpful when searching an unindexed census of a large city. (Family Search)

LEARN MORE ABOUT YOUR ANCESTORS THROUGH AGRICULTURAL FAIR LISTINGS IN THE PAPERS

Found on Fishwrap, the official Blog of Newspapers.com

June 12, 2024 by Edward Bradley

Do you have US ancestors who were farmers? Chances are, you do. The 1850 federal census documented over 2.3 million individuals who farmed as a profession, far exceeding other occupational categories at the time. From its inception, the United States was predominantly an agrarian society until it began transitioning towards manufacturing after the Civil War. With agricultural roots so deeply entrenched from the country's onset, the allure of agricultural fairs and their increased popularity was not surprising.

Agricultural fairs began in the United States in the early nineteenth century. The first was held in 1807 in Pittsfield, Massachusetts, and was organized by Elkanah Watson. It was a simple affair consisting of sheep shearing demonstrations. Future events evolved into larger, more encompassing gatherings. By the middle of the nineteenth century, some of the fairs began to include demonstrations of farming technologies.

To entice local citizens to participate in events, prize money or premiums were awarded for top exhibits. Men's submissions were typically livestock, agricultural goods, and handcrafted works. Women submitted baked goods, floral arrangements, preserves, embroidery, and miscellaneous domestic fabrications that displayed their homemaking skills and talents. The winners in each event had their names published in local newspapers. Listings typically included the finalists' names, the amount of prize money awarded, and, at times, their township of residence.

These simple bits of information provide insights about your ancestor, including the area where they lived, the types of animals they owned, the produce they grew on their farm, and the talents or skills each possessed. That information can lead to other records, providing even deeper insights into your ancestors' lives. Their township of residence and the date they appeared in the newspaper provide the starting place for which record sets to search.

Census Records: Begin with the federal census closest to the date your ancestor appeared in the article. If the census was after 1840, the record should list your ancestor's occupation, which was likely farmer. Additional information in the census could include their age, place of birth, spouse, and children. Some states also took their own censuses every ten years, ending in "5" (1865, 1875, etc.). State censuses asked questions different from those in federal censuses and could provide additional insights.

If your ancestor's profession was listed as a farmer, search federal non-population census records, specifically agricultural schedules. These are available for the years 1850 through 1880 and contain valuable information that could include:

- Name of owner or manager of the farm.
- Number of improved and unimproved acres on the farm.
- Number of livestock owned broken down by breed.
- Amount of agricultural goods produced during the preceding year (broken down by crop.)
- Cash value of the farm, farming machinery, livestock, animals slaughtered during the past years, and “homemade manufactures.

Entries may include information regarding orchard products, sugar produced (often from maple trees), apiaries, and other products grown or manufactured on the farm. Don't forget to check the second page of the schedules! Entries from this collection can reveal a glimpse of what daily life on the farm involved for your ancestors.

Plat Maps: Look for your ancestor's township of residence in plat maps (also called cadastral maps). If they owned property in the area, it could be listed on a township map. These contain a wealth of information, including who your ancestor's neighbors were, the location of the closest church or school, and how far your ancestor lived from the local post office. If you locate your ancestor in plat books, search for deeds.

Deeds: Did your ancestor own or rent their farm? Check local deeds to see when the property was purchased and from whom. Sometimes, fathers sold or gifted land to children, which could provide more information about your ancestor's family.

Back to the Newspapers: If your ancestor was awarded a premium in a fair, it is possible he or she may be listed in other news articles. Remember to search for variations of your ancestor's name, such as "Jas" for James or initials that your ancestor may have gone by. Begin with a broad search, then narrow the results using quotation marks for specific searches.

NORWEGIAN ANCESTORY?

Submitted by Sue Eckert

The best place to start is with yourself. Expand research with the who, when and where of each generation further back in time. You might be surprised at how much information you already have or might learn by asking family members about themselves. Gather as much information as you can on your family in this country before you try to do research on your ancestor's life in their country of origin, but don't forget to cite your sources of information.

Doing research on your Norwegian ancestors will be helped by learning a few of the basic Norwegian words used in bygdebøks, church records and documents. A person will become familiar with words like 'bygdebøk'. These books are great resources for research, containing hundreds of years of information on the communities, farms and families. (Sadly, although there are hundreds, maybe thousands of bygdebøk, not all communities, farms and families have been written about.) It also helps to remember spelling was much more fluid in the past and different regions may use different spellings due to dialects and influence from other languages. To get started, here are a few words used in bygdebøks (area books) and their translations:

unkarl = unmarried male/bachelor pige or pike = unmarried girl/maiden gift med = married with/to døpte = baptized

heimdøpte = baptized at home by family member or midwife if child not expected to live

død = died

begravd = buried

enke = widow

enkemann = widower

druknet = drowned

gard/garde/gaard = farm

bruk = divided section of main farm

husman = house holder

prest = priest/minister klokker = priest's assistant

Where do you find bygdebøks? There are more than 60 at the SVGS library and many are owned by more than 20 individual lags. What is a lag? A group of people with shared interest in a particular area of Norway. Many of the lags held their first meetings more than one hundred years ago and continue holding their annual meetings, with programs, area tours and dedicated genealogists. The genealogists will help you do research during stevne (gathering) or do research for members throughout the year.

In addition to volunteering at the SVGS library, as genealogist for two lags, I have 60+ bygdebøk for Rogaland and 40 for the Hardanger/Sør-Fjord area of Hordaland at my home, in addition to maps, family histories, finding aids and more. Not sure what lag or lags might be of interest to you? Find information on individual lags at <http://www.fellesraad.com/index.htm> or email me at: sueeckert1@gmail.com

Have you heard about the immigrant ship named Restauration? Often called the Norwegian Mayflower, its 53 passengers were the first of what became a huge immigration wave to America. Yes, there were already Norwegian immigrants in America, but this small sloop carried the first immigrant group. Widely studied for articles and books published through the following years, these immigrants were the first of many who left Norway, a country second only to Ireland in the percentage of population choosing to emigrant. The Sloopers, as this group became known, arrived in New York harbor on October 9, 1825 and next year, 2025, marks the 200th anniversary of its arrival. Plans are being made in America and Norway for activities in observance of the anniversary. To learn more about events, check out Norwegian interest organizations like Vesterheim Museum at Decorah Iowa, Minnesota Genealogical Society at Mendota Heights, Son of Norway, Daughters of Norway and Fellesraad (the umbrella organization of the lags. Hip, hip, hurrah for our Norwegian immigrant ancestors and their being brave enough to make the journey to America.

KEYBOARD SHORTCUTS

Submitted by Douglas Perret Starr and Phyllis Knutson

Keyboard Shortcuts are brief ways of inserting or changing what you are writing, adding an accent mark on a letter (à, é), a footnote number (³) on a name or a footnote ... that sort of thing.

In every computer, laptop and desktop, Mac and PC, more than 100 Keyboard Shortcuts are built in. To find a Shortcut, open Shortcuts and read through 10–15 pages to find the one you want.

To make Shortcuts easy to use, I searched a Mac and a PC, found the Shortcuts the average writer needed, and listed them on one page, Mac on one side, PC on the other.

That collection of most used Shortcuts makes writing on a computer much easier and much more accurate, as this: if when writing a “résumé,” you need to add two accents or you write “resume,” a totally different word.

And, of course, if you are writing in French, Spanish, or other foreign languages, you add lot of different accent marks.

Please give this list of Shortcuts to family, friends, colleagues, and particularly, high school and college students who need those Shortcuts in writing class essays.

Keep this Shortcuts list close to your computer so you can use it.

IT'S FOUND IN THE SVGS LIBRARY!

By Luci Feenstra

I am the Thursday afternoon volunteer at the SVGS Library. A while back, I noticed an interesting looking book in need of repair. It was The History of Jerauld County, South Dakota by N.J. Dunham. I grew up just west of Jerauld County!

This book covers the years from about 1859 to January 1909. Since there are few official records from this earlier time, the author has collected the many legends, printing those that seem correct. He has included names of the many settlers as well as where they lived. He talks of how the county was organized. During Dakota Territory time, the part now known as Jerauld County was born out of the western part of Buffalo county, a huge area west of Minnehaha and north of Yankton. In 1873 the county of Wetmore was created. Wetmore included the west half of now Miner county, all of Sanborn, most of Jerauld and the northern part of Aurora county. Wetmore was never organized and in 1879 was cut up into smaller subdivisions and absorbed into the other counties.

Dunham has also written down various costs for food, fuel, building supplies, taxes....

In the book, Mr. Dunham included names of abandoned towns like Waterbury and Sulphur Springs, residents of those towns, the schools, the churches, the businesses, the horrible winters (including first person recounts of The Great Blizzards of 1887-1888) and not least of all, among others, mail carriers.

He also writes of the many area prairie fires saying, in particular, "1889 witnessed more destruction than any year in its (Jerauld County) history." Prairie fires rate their own chapter, Part Three, Chapter 21, pg 340. He noted, the fires started in March, burning property from Hand County southward. In April, the winds started, believed to be more than eighty mph. Then, in Hand county, near Ree Heights, a man lit his pipe and discarded the match unwisely. That fire raged through the western half of Jerauld County, destroying almost everything in its path. For that fire and others, Mr. Dunham has included names, property lost and locations.

What an interesting recount of the lives of many early Dakota settlers. If your family lived in this general area during this pioneer time you might find their names. So far, I have found none from my family, but I have lots more of the book to read.

YOUR SOCIETY MIGHT BE DRIVING AWAY VISITORS

By Amy Johnson Crow on her blog: <https://www.nostorytoosmall.com/posts/10-ways-your-genealogy-society-might-be-driving-away-visitors>

There is a secret about attendance at genealogy society meetings. It is not enough to get people in the door. You must get them to come back.

I have attended many genealogy society meetings over the years. I mean A LOT of meetings. Large societies, small societies, societies in the country and societies in the city. None of them have reported an overabundance of attendees at their regular meetings.

I will be honest. There have been times when I have sat in these meetings and thought, "You know, it is no wonder only a handful of people come here regularly. Who would want to come back?"

Attendance is also a recurring issue with some churches. Thom S. Rainer noticed this and did a Twitter (now known as X) survey about why people did not make return visits to a church. The top ten list of responses sounded very familiar to me — and very applicable to genealogical societies. I have seen each of them happen in genealogy societies. I have adapted Dr. Rainer's language and added my own commentary.

1. Having a stand up and greet one another time

Rainer reported that this response surprised him. It surprised me, too, until I thought about it. Think about a time when you were introduced to a new group of people, such as being the new kid in class. Suddenly, all eyes are on you, and you're put on the spot. Who enjoys being in that position? My takeaway: Make people feel welcome without making them feel singled out. people really do not like to be singled out. In my experience, genealogists tend to be introverts (with some notable exceptions). The key is to make them feel welcome without singling them out.

2. Unfriendly members

Who wants to come back to a place where people ignore you or are rude to you?

3. Unsafe/inaccessible area

Rainer reported this as "unsafe or unclear children's area," which was a turn-off for attracting families with young children. For genealogy societies, we should evaluate if the meeting places are easily accessible and safe. Are there lots of stairs? Is the parking lot well-lit? Accessibility could also be looked at in terms of meeting days and times. Is Monday at 3:00pm the most accessible time for people to attend?

4. No place to get information

Do not assume that people know things like upcoming meetings, special events, or member benefits. Have a clearly marked area where people can get this information.

5. Bad website

Do not even get me started on this one. People might not even make it to your meeting if your society has a bad website. All the basic info should be there, including the address and time of your meetings. I wish I had a dollar for every website that said something like "We meet the 2nd Tuesday of the month at the firehouse." Uh, which firehouse? What time?

6. Poor signage

You know that the meeting room is up on the second floor at the end of the hall, but new people might not. Make it as easy and painless as possible to find you.

7. Insider language

Do not lose people with jargon. Rainer's favorite example was: "The WMU will meet in the CLC in the room where the GAs usually meets." I have heard similar examples at genealogy society meetings. "March 31 is the deadline for Sas for the CPF." Huh?

8. Boring or bad meetings

Who wants to come back if the meeting is boring? Do you really need to have an hour-long business meeting every time or do you do it because you have always done it that way?

9. Members telling guests that they were in their seat

Hard to believe this happens, but it does.

10. Dirty facilities

I have been to meeting spaces where the carpet stains appeared to be a few decades old. It does not make for a welcoming experience.

We do not like to think of things like clean rooms or unclear signs as keeping people from returning. We certainly do not like to think of our members as being a source of frustration for new people. However, all of it has an impact.

It is cliché to say that you don't get a second chance to make a first impression. But do you know what? It is true. Take a good look around at your society. What first impression is it making?

WONDERING ABOUT A PIONEER CERTIFICATE?

By Luci Feenstra

My sister, Ellen, found and sent me a clipping about a lady that had passed at age 101. However, the article was dated April 1994. That is a bit too far out to include in our Centurion notices but in reading it, I decided, if this lady were my ancestor, I would probably qualify for a Pioneer Certificate!

This is the notice:

Eva M. Lanz, 101, died April 11, (1994). Eva M. Sedan was born in 1892 on the family homestead a mile south of St Lawrence. She was proud of her pioneer heritage. Her father was one of the founders of what is now the St. Lawrence Church, and Eva played piano for services as long as she can remember. Eva's mother was one of the first officers of the St. Lawrence Eastern Star, and Eva was one of the first officers and a member for more than 75 years. Upon her first husband's loss of health in 1933, she felt fortunate to get a job at the St. Lawrence Post Office for $20 a month.

I started my research on Ancestry and found Eva had at least ten siblings and her mother was 50 when she was born. Eva was married twice and had one child.

Next, I checked on FamilySearch for the 1925 SD State Census for her father, Robert Tate Sedan. This record, to the left, shows he had been in South Dakota for 43 years, having arrived well before South Dakota became a state on 2 Nov 1889.

Yes. The extended families of Eva and her many siblings do qualify for Pioneer Certificates.

Eva Lanz reminisces about a century of Hand County life

By LINDA RENAUD
Plainsman Correspondent

MILLER — South Dakota became a state only three years before Eva Lanz was born near St. Lawrence.

"My parents farmed," Lanz said. "They came out here from Illinois in 1882. They helped to build up the town of St. Lawrence. There wasn't much here."

Eva Lanz has built her life in Hand County. On Sunday, she celebrates her 100th birthday. St. Lawrence grew quickly, she said.

"Years ago, we didn't come to Miller. We had everything in St. Lawrence," Lanz said. "We might come to Miller once a month and buy a nickel's worth of candy. That was a big treat. We didn't have cars. We walked or went by horse-drawn cart."

But a slower pace isn't anything to regret. "I've had an exciting life," she remarked. "I've never had much money either. You don't have to have money to be happy."

The piano has been a major source of happiness for Lanz.

"My music has meant a lot to me," she said. "It really is a God-given gift, because I never had lessons."

Her talents took her to Boston, Washington, Denver and Minneapolis, where she played piano at national postal conventions.

Lanz began working at the St. Lawrence Post Office in the mid-1930s when her first husband, Sid Fritts, became ill.

Fae Thompson was the postmistress in St. Lawrence at that time. The two women went to the South Dakota postal convention in Armour.

"Mrs. Thompson led the singing and she was good at it," Lanz said. "I played the piano."

Their musical abilities earned them an invitation to the national gathering in Boston the following year.

"My sister wrote me and said, 'Imagine my baby sister in Boston playing a grand piano!'"

Lanz played piano for the St. Lawrence Community Church for most of her life.

"I played for the Christmas cantata 75 years ago," Lanz remembered. "I did play before then, but I can't remember when I started."

The residents at Miller Manor, where Lanz lives, get to hear her play now.

"I play downstairs at noon, just a piece or two," Lanz said.

Church members also appreciate Lanz's memory.

"If we want to know when something was done at the church, we always go ask Eva," one member said. "It might take her a day or two to get it all remembered but she does."

Several years after Lanz's first husband died, she married Louie Lanz and became stepmother to his three grown children.

The family gatherings that Lanz sponsored began almost immediately.

"I've had Christmas ever since Louie and I got married," Lanz commented. "We started in a five-room house. One year I was up at the nursing home with a broken arm, so we had Christmas there."

"I've had an exciting life.
I've never had much money...You don't have to have money to be happy."

Eva Lanz, 100 years old

Relatives come from as far away as Arizona and California for the annual gathering.

Lanz frequently gives handmade gifts to family members at Christmas and will do the same on Sunday at her birthday open house which will be held at the United Methodist Church from 2 to 4 p.m.

"I crocheted two hangers for each female relative coming to the party," Lanz said. "That's 60 hangers. I got them all done. Now I don't have anything to do!"

The clipping above was shared on Ancestry:

Now it is your turn. Can you prove how you are directly related to Eva's father Robert, by using printed sources and documentation? Use censuses, Glo records, Church records, birth and death announcements, wedding notices, etc. Whatever you need to trace "you" to Robert. Is anyone related to Eva?

Georgia Christopulos

May 6, 1922 - November 29, 2023

Georgia Christopulos, 101, passed away under hospice care on November 29, 2023. She was buried at Woodlawn Cemetery.

Georgia Christopulos, 101, was born May 6, 1922 to Steve and Elaine Soteropulos in Ottumwa, Iowa. Her two brothers, Gust and Paul preceded her in death. She loved them both dearly, their spouses Vivien and Sally and their children. Family was the center of Georgia's life, and she treasured her role as mother, wife, sister, yiayia and grandmother. Georgia is survived by her half-sister Beverly Murri.

The Soteropulos family as well as Chris' sisters, Kay (John) Boosalis, Daisy (Jack) Till and Eva (George) Chandiles and their families enjoyed many good times vacationing together. Chris and Georgia also traveled to Europe and Greece with friends and members of Chris' family to reconnect with relatives in the old country.

On May 30, 1948 she was united in marriage with Chris Christopulos of Sioux Falls. The couple lived in Sioux Falls where Chris (The Golden Greek) was self-employed in the restaurant business. They had two children, Stephanie (Gary Johnson) and George. Georgia appreciated the generous support and attention of both son-in-law Gary and former daughter-in-law Kate Christopulos throughout her life.

Both Georgia and Chris were active in the Transfiguration Greek Orthodox Church. She was a member of the Daughters of Penelope and volunteered whenever needed for church-sponsored events and meals. One of her greatest joys was cooking. There were countless occasions where Chris invited people who were alone for the holidays to a celebratory dinner at their house and Georgia loved being the "hostess with the mostest"! Guests and friends marveled at the amazing meals Georgia and Chris served at their homes in Sioux Falls and California over many decades. Chris was a constant fixture on the patio grill at their Clarkway home.

Georgia relished spending time with her precious grandchildren: Holly, Damon and Theo Johnson and Chris, Alex and Nick Christopulos. Whether it was coming to visit in Minneapolis or having them spend time at her home in Sioux Falls, there was always wonderful food in the fridge and lots of time being pampered by yiayia and papou. She was very proud of the fact that she could describe herself as part of four generations, enjoying many years with her great-grandchildren: Thea and Tula Larsen, Connor, Beckham and Avery Johnson all of whom lovingly referred to her as "JoJo".

She spent her final years living at the Good Samaritan Village on Marion Road in Sioux Falls. There she was tenderly cared for by an amazing staff who admired her feistiness to the end. Her most frequent visitors, Nettie Portner, Karen Bittner, Kate Christopulos and Helen Belbas were the angels who offered her comfort and whatever help she needed. Nettie devoted much of her time and energy to lifting Georgia's spirits with flowers, clothes and true friendship. Before Helen passed away, she religiously called Georgia nightly at 7:00 PM sharp to say goodnight and talk with her in her beloved Greek language.

Georgia was feisty, gregarious and strong-willed to the end. She possessed a great sense of humor and was truly an "Unforgettable" personality for her friends and four generations of family members who cherish her memory.

Donita Alice Evenson

Doris Gjervik

May 10, 1923 - January 20, 2024

Doris Gjervik, age 100, passed away Saturday, January 20, 2024, at Ecumen of Litchfield, MN.

Doris Mae Nelson was born on May 10, 1923, to Norman and Ruth (Lande) Nelson, on the family farm near Cylinder, Iowa. They raised Doris and her two siblings, Richard and Elizabeth, in a strong, loving family with their faith in God as the cornerstone of their lives. Doris's father, her husband Stanley, and brother and brother-in-law were all Lutheran pastors.

Doris graduated from Augustana Academy, Canton, SD, in 1940, Augustana College, Sioux Falls, SD (1940-42) and Fairview School of Nursing in Minneapolis, MN. She married Stanley Victor Gjervik on May 29, 1945, as he finished his degree at Luther Theological Seminary, Saint Paul, MN. Then she began the work of raising six children, managing a full household and contributing to the community. She played a vital role at home, and extended hospitality to others by opening their home to others, often for lengthy stays. While building a church and home in Hawaii, the contractor and wife lived in the home of Doris and Stan for a few years, and another time, a missionary family stayed for five years. When her mother-in-law lived with Stan & Doris in California for 12 years, Doris started a board and care home for five other women, and all six lived full-time with them. The Gjervik house was often bursting at the seams.

While active in parish life in the churches of Orfordville, WI; Lyle and Kenyon, MN; Honolulu, HI; Novato, Ventura and Joshua Tree, CA, Doris kept her nursing license for forty years and worked in numerous hospitals. As a pastor's wife she served as a teacher, Bible study leader, choir director, organist and other positions as needed. She was a Cub Scout leader and on the public-school board while they lived in Hawaii. In retirement years, Stan and Doris served congregations at Roseni and Emmanuel Lutheran Churches at Beresford, SD, and Grand Valley Lutheran Church at Canton, SD, among others in the Sioux Falls area. Doris also volunteered with the Sioux Valley Hospice program in Sioux Falls, SD, exemplifying a listening, patient and gracious woman. Vacations in Norway and Europe with Stan were highlights, and in later years Doris continued to travel alone or with her daughter-in-law, Janis.

After Stanley died in 2003, Doris moved to an apartment in Sioux Falls, SD, then to Litchfield, MN.

Doris had eight children: Melvin, Ruth, Philip, Grace, Lois, Bruce, David and Mary Ann. Preceding her in death were her parents; husband Stanley; infant daughters Ruth and Grace; son Melvin and his wife, Janis; son Bruce; David's wife, Billie; brother and sister-in-law Rev. Richard and Deloris Nelson.

Remembering a life well lived is her sister Elizabeth (Rev. J. David) Nelson, of Litchfield, MN; two sons, Philip (Laurie) Gjervik, Raymond, MN, and David Gjervik, Redding, CA; two daughters, Lois Gjervik Maertz, OR, and Mary Ann Gjervik, CA; and daughter-in-law Gail Gjervik, of Ventura, CA. Doris is also survived by four grandsons: Todd (Heather) Gjervik, Apple Valley, MN; Michael Gjervik and Brian Gjervik, Stewartville, MN; and Dylan Maertz, Brookings, OR. Great-grandchildren include Braden, Ethan, Noah and Ava Gjervik. Doris also has many nieces and nephews.

Dear Ancestor,

Your tombstone stands among the rest;
Neglected and alone.
The name and date are chiselled out On polished, marbled stone.
It reaches out to all who care It is too late to mourn.

You did not know that I exist
You died and I was born.
Yet each of us are cells of you In flesh, in blood, in bone.
Our blood contracts and beats a pulse Entirely not our own.

Dear Ancestor, the place you filled, One hundred years ago
Spreads out among the ones you left
Who would have loved you so.
I wonder if you lived and loved,
I wonder if you knew
That someday I would find this spot,
And come to visit you.
